Description

Brown-Headed Nuthatch

The Brown-Headed Nuthatch is the only North American bird to use a tool to find its food. It will often use a piece of bark to pry up another piece of bark in search of insects. Look high up in the outer tips of tree branches to find this bird foraging for its meals.

The carving of the Brown-Headed Nuthatch is beautifully painted with subtle coloration. It measures 4 3/4 inches from head to tail and has an overall height of 5 1/2 inches.

All of our life-sized birds are hand-carved from basswood (a very carvable wood that does not split and takes paint well), hand-feathered to show detail and painted with acrylic paint. The eyes are glass, feet are metal and base is wood.

Yet another really nicely carved bird. I especially like the pose as it is very lifelike and is rather different from most other carved nuthatches.
